

You can start financial management if you know business analysis already. It concerns not only to companies, but also to top-managers. As the result of business activity free costs become available. The question is where to invest, for what period, what risks and what profit can be. The opposite situation is possible too: there are new projects that need additional financing. In such a case the question is where to obtain the costs, how much, how profitable it can be.

Managers often make calculations of the income, but forget to calculate the expenditures, neglecting it in price calculation. According to statistics only 1% of entrepreneurs, that know to make money, know how to spend it right. The best solution is to get professional consultants for this job, which is much cost-effective than relying on own experience and intuition. Our Company has such specialists. Our experts can suggest and calculate different options for long and short time perspective .
